Affordable Language Programs for Beginners Extended

PALO ALTO, CA — September 30, 2008 — In early June 2008, Palo Alto-based Language Studies Institute introduced an affordable language program for beginners on Saturday mornings - $275 per person for ten one-hour lessons. Since its introduction, the beginner program became so popular that the language school is almost running out of seats on Saturday mornings. Due to the success of this program, the school has decided to extend its offer and make it available during weekdays to meet the demand.

“We are a unique language school, offering more than twelve different languages. Very few language schools in Santa Clara County offer the same quality education with such affordable price we have,” said Mr. Jonathan Xu, President of Language Studies Institute. “We know there are language needs in the Silicon Valley as recent research shows more than half of the families speak a different language other than English. We hope our low-priced beginner language program will encourage more people to take the first step towards learning a new language.”

Language Studies Institute offers small group classes as well as private lessons in three convenient locations: Palo Alto (main office), Cupertino, and Milpitas. Both adults and children are welcome.

For information on the language programs offered by Language Studies Institute, please contact Mrs. Bianca McMaster at (650) 321-1867 or email at inquiry@languagego.com.
